

Know your Marketing...

...and have a powerful impact on your business

We're all marketers now

For the past decade, marketers have been adjusting to a new era of deep customer engagement. They've tacked on new functions, such as social-media management; altered processes to better integrate advertising campaigns online, on television and in print and added staff with Web expertise to manage the explosion of digital customer data.

To engage customers for whom "push" advertising is increasingly irrelevant, companies must do more outside the confines of the traditional marketing organization. At the end of the day, customers no longer separate marketing from the product - it is the product. They don't separate marketing from their in-store or online experience - it is the experience. In the era of engagement, marketing is the company.

The shift presents an obvious challenge: if everyone's responsible for marketing, who's accountable?

In a memorable anecdote, one of former Chrysler CEO Lee Iacocca's key hires, Hal Sperlich, arrived at the automaker in 1977 as the new vice president of product planning. His first question: "Who is in charge of quality?"

"Everybody," a confident executive replied.

"But who do you hold responsible when there are problems in quality?" Sperlich pressed.

"Nobody."

"Oh, shoot," Sperlich thought. "We are in for it now."<sup>(1)</sup>
